

Penning Freesia specializes in the breeding, cultivation and trading of Freesia and Hippeastrum. Planting material of our Freesia and Hippeastrum varieties is available to professional growers worldwide.

Our company has been breeding Freesia for almost half a century. Following the introduction of the first varieties in the mid 1970's, we have since created many new varieties, resulting in a brand new assortment, suitable for cut flower and pot culture. Although the current assortment already displays remarkable variation in types and colours, our breeding program continues to produce varieties in exciting new and novel colours which will become available to commercial growers, exporters and consumers in the coming years.

Propagation and preservation of new and existing varieties is carried out in two locations: in Morocco and in the north of Noord-Holland province in the Netherlands. The development of aphid-free shaded houses in Morocco and shaded tunnels in the Netherlands has enabled the production of virtually virus-free planting material. Together, these two locations enable fresh, top quality planting material to be supplied throughout the year.

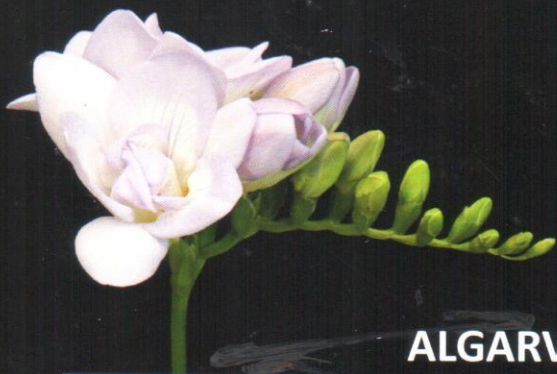

Climate-specific cultural advice to suit individual circumstances throughout most continents, is all part of the after-sales service. In consultation with the client, the company prepares a cultivation scheme, tailored to the client's local climatic conditions and taking into account any specific cultural features and potential cultural difficulties. Moreover, the development of new computer technologies enables the company to advise clients, as and when required, irrespective of their geographical location. Our complete range of varieties can be found in this catalogue. Details of all our Freesia varieties can also be found on our website.
